Fair Representation by Double Proportionality

Friedrich Pukelsheim

Abstract

Double proportional apportionment methods simultaneously achieve two goals: representing geographical districts proportionally to population figures, and representing political parties proportionally to vote counts. Double proportionality was conceived by Michel Balinski and Gabrielle Demange in 1989 and, since 2006, has been adopted successfully in many Swiss Cantons. The talk will retrace the road from conception to success.